Hezbollah, the Light of God

Question:

With all this pressure and the bombing of southern Lebanon, is there still hope that Hezbollah will remain?

The true followers of the Ahl al-Bayt, peace be upon them, like the Ahl al-Bayt themselves, are oppressed while possessing power. They are powerful because what they believe in is drawn from a divine source and fountainhead, and whatever is divine is nothing but power and dignity. They are oppressed because the world-seekers and the lust-driven use every method and tool to destroy them, but they stand firm in the path of their belief and faith with their whole being, with their lives, wealth, and honor.

Lebanon's Hezbollah is a clear example of the powerful and oppressed Shia who, by believing in and accepting this noble verse, "Indeed, the party of Allah, they are the victorious," has stepped onto a path on which the dignity and greatness of this mujahid group increase day by day. The greatness that Lebanon's Hezbollah enjoys today is so vast and praiseworthy that it has become a source of wonder for many analysts, theorists, free-thinkers, and free people of the world. Powerful Hezbollah today is a thorn in the eye of the Zionist regime and the reactionary Arabs of the region.

Perhaps on the day when Sayyid Hassan Nasrallah, the secretary-general of this party, was martyred, many thought that Hezbollah would no longer possess the necessary power and influence. But in the forty days of war with Israel and America, Hezbollah's effective and paralyzing blows once again placed its power and strength at the center of attention. This powerful action by Hezbollah was the realization of the statement of the martyred Leader of the Revolution, who after the martyrdom of Sayyid Hassan Nasrallah said: "The foundation he laid in Lebanon and through which he gave direction to other centers of resistance will not only not disappear with his absence, but by the blessing of his blood and the blood of the other martyrs of this incident, it will become even more solid. The blows of the Resistance Front upon the worn-out and declining body of the Zionist regime will, by God's will and power, become more crushing."

The other side of Hezbollah is its oppression. Because Hezbollah is independent and resistant, both the puppet Arab rulers and leaders, the savage Zionists, and the domestic mercenaries inside Lebanon have used all their efforts to defeat it. Military war, media war, sectarian and tribal war, economic war, and every other tool within their power have been used to bring resistant Hezbollah to its knees. The bombing of the residential homes of the Shias of southern Lebanon, the killing of innocent children and women, and media insults and accusations are manifestations of Hezbollah's oppression. Yet according to what Quranic teachings, the conduct of the Ahl al-Bayt, the history of resistance, and the glad tidings of the divine leaders of the Revolution show, none of these efforts will lead to destruction and disintegration. On the contrary, this is God's tradition: however much the enemies try to extinguish the light of God, God will perfect His light, as He says: "They want to extinguish the light of Allah with their mouths, but Allah will perfect His light, even though the disbelievers dislike it."

Hezbollah's oppression and resistance have caused the claimants of human rights and freedom to be exposed, because they have witnessed with their own eyes the countless crimes of the Zionists against them and have remained silent. It has also become a model for the Axis of Resistance and freedom-seekers. In reality, rather than needing the support and help of others, Hezbollah has become a model that shows everyone that one can, through resistance and patience, in a small geography with limited means but with firm determination and certain belief, stand against the most wicked human beings and make them intensely angry. Hezbollah is a manifestation and example of the light of God, and the light of God cannot be extinguished.
